Penerangan

The answer should come from the cultivation of his or her people and how these people are perceived outside the organisation. Do they reflect the manager's leadership qualities? Are they motivated in their pursuit of common objectives and aims? Do they achieve these common objectives and aims effectively and successfully? This book is written to guide managers in bringing out the best in their people. The author, by giving his account from various experiences and real life incidents and analyses on various type of managers in a myriad of situations, has opted to write in a simple but engaging manner.
